Earnshaw Baffles Cards, A's Win on Two-Hit Pitching

Philadelphia Wins 3 to 0 and Series Is Tied, 2 Games Each

MARTIN AGAIN HERO

St. Louis Centerfielder Gets Team's Only Hits of Day

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—It was the Athletics' pitching staff's turn Tuesday and George Earnshaw, big right-hander, set the Cardinals down with 2 hits, shutting them out 3 to 0.

Earnshaw, No. 2 pitcher on Connie Mack's staff, avenged his defeat by "Wild Bill" Hallahan in the second game at St. Louis, by holding Gabby Street's men hitless for the first four innings. Only nine men faced "Big George" in the first three innings, and he fanned eight during the game.

Martin Again Stars

"Pepper" Martin, St. Louis centerfielder and hero of the 1931 World Series, again started with two hits—one of them a double—in three times at bat, the only two hits the Western club got.

A cloudy sky and a sultry day aided Earnshaw as his burning shots whistled across the plate and the Cardinal batters went down one after the other.

Sylvester Johnson started on the mound for St. Louis, but was relieved in the seventh by Lindsey; and Derringer finished the game. The Athletics touched them for a total of 10 hits. Johnson fanned two, Lindsey two, and Derringer one.

The Philadelphia's attack on Johnson started with the first man in the first inning, Max Bishop singled. Mule Haas and Cochrane were out. Al Simmons doubled, to score Bishop. Fox walked; and Miller was out. One run, two hits, no errors.

Big 6th Inning

The last two runs were scored in the sixth inning. Cochrane and Simmons were out. Fox hit a home run with none on. Bing Miller slapped out a double. Dykes struck a single to the outfield, scoring Miller. Williams singled, advancing Dykes, but both died on base. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

An accident during batting practice before the game put flowers, St. Louis third baseman, on the casualty list. Flowers was struck in the mouth by a batted ball and knocked unconscious for six minutes. He recovered in time to start the game, but after the opening inning left the lineup, his place being taken by Andy High.

The lineup: St. Louis—Flowers and High 3b; Watkins rf; Frisch 2b; Bottomley 1b; Hafey lf; Martin cf; Wilson c; Gilbert ss; Johnson, Lindsey, Derringer p; Collins, batted for Lindsey in the eighth.

Philadelphia—Bishop 2b; Haas cf; Cochrane c; Simmons lf; Fox 1b; Miller rf; Dykes 3b; Williams ss; Earnshaw p.

Governor of Georgia Pays New York Visit

WARM SPRINGS, Ga.—(P)—Naturally enough, when the governor of Georgia met the governor of New York Sunday there was some discussion of national politics.

With the youthful Georgia executive, Richard B. Russell, Jr., on a visit here Sunday was Major John Cohen, president and editor of the Atlanta Journal and a national committee member. They with Edward J. Flynn, New York's secretary of state, and close political advisor of the New York governor, Franklin D. Roosevelt, were luncheon guests at the Roosevelt cottage here.

Apparently the "vacation from politics," as Roosevelt called his visit here has become a "vacation with politics."

Both Russell and Cohen assured the New Yorker Georgia was safely in his camp if he became the candidate for the democratic presidential nomination.

Editor's Throat Cut Over Editorial Attack

DOthan, Ala.—(P)—J. F. Elmore, of Cottonwood, a school teacher, was held in jail Saturday, while physicians sought to save the life of L. Smith Deal, editor of the Wiregrass Journal, whose throat was slashed by Elmore here late Friday because of an alleged editorial attack.

Elmore and Deal met in a pool room, where police said, the school teacher slashed the editor's throat, partly severing the jugular vein with a pocket knife. Elmore was arrested on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

Police said Elmore, a supporter of former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, had resented an editorial commenting on the recent suspension of the Birmingham Independent, a morning paper, and wrote Deal to strike his name from the Wiregrass Journal subscription list, declaring "the Independent is much cleaner than any newspaper in Dothan."

An editorial commenting on Elmore's letter was carried in the Wiregrass Journal on Thursday when Elmore was described as a "Hoover-rebel, rebellious over a lost cause, a follower of Heflin and a down-and-out."

The editorial also charged that Elmore's subscription had become delinquent on January 1 and had not been paid.

Ride Appreciated, But Not the Room And Board in Jail

LITTLE ROCK—Allen Green and Otis Miller, Conway negroes, refused to pick cotton on the Mark Valentin plantation Monday morning. Deputy Sheriff Spires and McCarroll called in a car for them and started to Little Rock with them.

En route Green and Miller were talkative and happy over what they thought was a "lift" back to Little Rock. Near the Main street bridge Green said:

"Well boss, it sure was nice of you to haul us two niggers back to town. We'll get out at the next corner."

The officers chuckled.

"You boys are under arrest for vagrancy," Spires informed them.

So Green and Miller landed in jail thoroughly puzzled.

Friends Seeking Anti-Fascist Flier

Son of American Woman, Who Bearded Mussolini, Unheard From

PARIS.—The mysterious aviator who flew over Rome Saturday night scattering anti-Fascist tracts was Lauro de Bosis, son of the former Lillian Vernon of St. Louis, and the late Adolfo de Bosis, Italian poet. This was learned from anti-Fascist friends of de Bosis Monday night.

Although he outwitted the Italian pursuit planes and disappeared over the Mediterranean, de Bosis has not been heard from since his friends have dispatched several planes in search for him.

He started from Marseilles and reached Rome at 8 o'clock. He flew over the city for several minutes and dumped more than 200,000 leaflets over the side, then dashed to the north before returning to the sea in order to elude his pursuers. The leaflets were appeals to the king to end Italy's dictatorship, "throw off Fascist slavery," and return to liberal traditions.

Contrary to the first belief that de Bosis flew from Corsica, it was said Monday night that he flew from Dalmatia on the other side of the Adriatic. This theory is confirmed by the fact the pamphlets were found in fields around the city of Terni and along the Adriatic coast.

If the aviator did come from the Adriatic coast, it will relieve considerable diplomatic tension that might have resulted had he come from Corsica in a French plane as was first reported.

It was revealed that one large packet of anti-Fascist propaganda fell in Premier Mussolini's back yard which revealed the skill of the pilot and the accurate preparation made for the expedition.

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—(P)—Lieut. James E. Adams, 36, Huntington, L. I., N. Y., and Pvt. Fred Applewhite, 22, Boston, Miss., were burned to death late Monday as their plane crashed into a high tension wire in attempting to land at Maxwell Field, army air school here.

Hoxie Hotel and Residence Burn

Loss Estimated at $130,000, About Half Covered by Insurance

HOXIE—Hotel Noble, one of the largest in this section, and an adjoining residence, both owned by Mrs. A. B. Gibson, were destroyed by fire of unknown origin at 4 Monday morning. The loss is estimated at $130,000, about half covered by insurance.

Mrs. Gibson is planning to rebuild the hotel.

The building had been leased by the Noble Hotel Company, which also operates hotels at Jonesboro and Blytheville. The furnishings owned by the Noble company were about half covered by insurance. Most of the furnishings of the home were saved.

The blaze, in a restaurant, was discovered by the night clerk. The fire department from Walnut Ridge was called but was unable to check the flames. Dynamite was used in an effort to prevent the flames from spreading to the residence. The post-office, a drug store and a barber shop in an adjoining building, although protected by a thick fire wall, were damaged.

The hotel building, a large two-story structure, was built in 1924. Mr. Burris, manager of the hotel, and the night clerk were unable to explain how the blaze started.

Plans To Develop Rutile Deposits

Oklahoman Ships Machinery for 150-Ton Mill to Magnet Cove

HOT SPRINGS.—Two mineral deposits discovered recently which mining engineers and geologists say may prove profitable, will be developed soon, it was announced here Monday.

H. R. McKnight of Tulsa is placing machinery in Magnet Cove for a 150-ton mill to take care of the deposit of rutile recently discovered there. The mill will be less than a mile from Cove creek, Hot Spring county, near Highway No. 6. From rutile is obtained titanium dioxide and the deposit, like that of barite, also a new discovery in the Magnet Cove sector, is said to be extensive. State Senator Joe E. Kimzey of Magnet Cove was instrumental in getting the rutile deposit developed. Part of the machinery for the mill is on the ground.

George Blow, mining engineer and consultant geologist, with headquarters in New York, has been looking over the cinabar deposit in Pike county. Cinabar is a metal from which mercury is derived.

"I have looked the ground over thoroughly for the past 10 days," Mr. Blow said, "but I cannot at this time make a statement regarding the purpose of my visit."

His brother, Almond Blow, vice president and general manager for the American Petroleum Company, said to be a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company, conferred with him here. Much of the cinabar deposit is on land owned by the Grayson Lumber Company.

Tragedy Reported By Light Keeper at Bur Coat Tuesday

Explosion Follows Crash as Plane Lands in Water

CRIES ARE HEARD

Rescue Party, Quickly Organized, Fail to Find Men

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia.—(P)—The crash of a plane, believed to be the ship to shore machine, "New York," carrying mail from the United States, was reported by William Faulkner, light keeper at Bur Coat.

Whizzing along in the darkness the craft was heard to come down heavily on Coquid Bay, he said.

An explosion followed an eerie cry echoed over the bay.

He quickly organized a searching party which could find no trace of men or plane.

The plane was manned by Fred Simon, pilot, and Rudolph Wachs, knock-knocked his machine and took off from the liner. Monday, $30,000, Cape Race, Newfoundland, attempted to get the mail to New York 50 miles faster than the liner.

They reached Sydney in a fog and heavy winds Monday night and took off at midnight.

Congress Leaders Called For Parley

Their Views on Moratorium Extension Believed Sought by Hoover

WASHINGTON.—Legislative steps to speed up economic recovery both here and abroad will be the topic at an informal White House discussion Tuesday night. Leaders in both branches of Congress have been summoned to Washington by the president for the parley, which was called to "secure unity of action" in dealing with economic problems growing out of events in Europe which affect economic conditions in the United States.

Among those summoned are: Senator James E. Watson, Republican, Indiana, majority leader in the Senate; Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, Senate minority leader; Representative John Q. Tilson, Republican, Connecticut, floor leader in the House, and Representative John N. Garner, Democrat, Texas, House minority leader.

It was announced that the president had begun a series of conferences with leaders in finance and business, and planned to consult with every group that could be helpful. As Mr. Hoover adopted a similar course before he announced his proposal for war debts and reparations holiday, it is considered highly possible that the president seeks views on proposals advanced recently for extension of a moratorium over three or five years.

Congressional support would have to be obtained in behalf of any move to extend the holiday on war debt and reparations payments. With pressure has been exerted on the White House in recent weeks by American bankers who believe that the debt holiday must be extended if European economic recovery is to be expedited. That the late Senator Dwight Morrow who figured in the war debt and reparations discussions, conferred last week with Secretary Stimson and Secretary Mellon, the White House spokesmen abroad during the moratorium negotiations, lent credence to reports that certain phases of the debt holiday would be up for consideration.

It is expected that proposals for a naval building holiday will be taken up with congressional leaders by the president. It is also highly possible that he will urge the necessity for economy during the coming session of Congress.

Good Will Too Late

PREMIER LAVAL and Briand today shook hands with President Von Hindenburg and went into conference with German statesmen on measures of co-operation to restore the confidence of Europe.

So reads a paragraph from a recent cable from Berlin. It is welcome news, and it may foreshadow great things; but to some people in this generation it will simply re-emphasize the old truth—that the most tragic phrase in the history of international relations is the phrase, "too late."

The president of Germany and the premier of France meet and shake hands. In the background, if there are such things as ghosts, there must be several army corps of spectral soldiers who are wondering why some such things couldn't have been done 17 years ago.

In 1914 the heads of great nations were wary about shaking hands. There was no talk then of co-operation between French and German statesmen to "restore the confidence of Europe." Instead the monarchs and prime ministers and generals struck heroic attitudes and several million young men who had been told that it was sweet and proper to die for one's country went out to find out if it were so.

To be sure, conditions today are not like the conditions of late July and early August, 1914. Yet today's crisis, which takes the head of the French government to Berlin, does not contain the seeds of half as much harm for the world as the one of 1914 contained. Indeed, if the statesmen had conferred instead of rushing to arms in 1914 there would be no crisis today at all.

All of which, perhaps, is something like crying over spilt milk. The World war dead will not come out of their graves unless to peer, dim shadows, at Franco-German rapprochement—and there is little use in talking about what might have been.

But it doesn't hurt us to be reminded that the World war was a frightful blunder, a blunder which a little sanity could have averted. There are people who can look with equanimity on a repetition of such a blunder; indeed, when President Hoover proposes that we spend only $340,000,000 on our navy in the next 12 months there are people ready to protest until they grow hoarse. The handshake in Berlin is a cheering spectacle, but we should not forget that it would have saved 10,000,000 lives if it had come 17 years earlier.

The American Theater

GILBERT SWAN, Broadway columnist, reports that revivals of old-time music shows are becoming increasingly popular these days.

A season or two ago the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas were put on to packed houses. More recently some producer received "The Merry Widow," and profited thereby. Now "The Chocolate Soldier" is being played, and the Broadway crowds seem to like it immensely.

All of this, for some reason, reminds one just a little bit of Henry Ford's passion for restoring buildings, villages and furniture of a century or more ago.

The motor king—who probably did as much as anyone to make complete the gap between the present and the slow-moving, picturesque past—seems to have been assailed by the same emotion that has overtaken New York's theater patrons; a rather wistful longing for a past that won't come back, a feeling that the modern era somehow lacks something that it is good to have.

Those out-moded musical shows emphasize the point.

The theater then, was "fraught with romance" in real truth. It could be flip and sly on occasion, of course; but the old moonlight-and-honeysuckle, tinsel-and-stardust recipe was its staple, and the patrons who thrived on it could feel that the romance that came across the footlights was not so terribly far removed from real life, after all.

Today things are different. Our highest-priced music show stars are not ineffably handsome tenors any more; they are clowns, in black-face on the guise of leering boulevardiers. Instead of trying to transport us into a magic land of beautiful princesses and gallant young officers they tease us with wisecracks. They try to evoke guffaws in place of dreams.

To be sure, the change was inevitable, and probably we are better for it. The Graustarkian, Prince-of-Pilsen era was based on a profound mistake, and it dissolved quickly in the lyddite fumes along the western front in 1914. But because that era lent itself to romantic dreams of that kind, we of today—who have lost most of our dreams, and feel the loss badly—look back, and listen to the old tunes and enjoy the old adventures, and wish that we could get it back.

Dropping Ballast!

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON.—Lots of people, judging from inquiries, are not sure whether President Hoover could restore beer and wine to the country by a mere executive order. Of course he can't and only an act of Congress could make beer legal. But the wide attention being directed at the president in connection with the beer speculation is based on the fact that a strong declaration from him at this time would carry tremendous weight in Congress and through the country and might definitely mark the turning point away from prohibition.

Neither house of Congress will pass any beer legislation during the next session unless Hoover demands it, and he is not expected to do so. Even if the president did come out for beer and urge Congress to restore it there is some room for doubt whether the House and Senate would fall over themselves in a rush to comply. The point is that White House intervention is the only thing that might cause legislative action in the near future.

The Volstead act could be modified by a majority vote, but each house is still regarded as approximately three-fourths dry. A call for beer from Hoover, because of the presidential influence and the fact that beer is now being demanded as an important step toward relieving depression, would be likely to whittle down the dry majorities considerably, although one can only guess as to how many votes it would affect. Members of Congress will vote for beer when they dare and not before.

A MERE intimation that the president would be willing to sign a three per cent bill probably would have little if any effect on Capitol Hill. It would be necessary for Hoover, if he espoused the beer cause and sought to get anywhere with it this winter, to mobilize sentiment through the country to help him and to announce his conversion in emphatic tones. There is plenty of pro-beer sentiment, but there is also still plenty of anti-beer sentiment and no one has yet been able to tempt Hoover to defy the latter.

This beer talk as well as all the efforts to persuade the president will come to nothing. There has been no similar situation in the history of prohibition, however, and one is bound to suspect a significance in the persistent beer agitation, which has appeared to become gradually stronger. The theory that beer would help bring back prosperity has been widely adopted and because everyone is looking for a quick and easy way out of the depression it will be held out often and echoed as long as the depression lasts.

WET sentiment has become more tangible and even solidified. It is being demonstrated. The lack of that sort of thing has previously been one of the most hopeless phases of the situation from the wet standpoint.

Now it is reported that a majority of Hoover's own cabinet members are sold on the idea of three per cent beer and it is known that a considerable number of his friends and advisers have been trying to make him see their point. It is true that many hard-headed Republican politicians have been telling him that his best political bet is to stay right on the dry side and that this view has thus far been taken by Hoover, but never before has there been anything like this recent showing of wet sympathy in the ranks of the administration.

Republican politicians who have been working for a moister attitude on the part of both the president and the party are mostly in populous states where they have learned the difficulty of defeating wet Democratic candidates. Wet leanings have strengthened among them and the same thing is claimed to have been true among business men. The active wet campaign of labor leaders, increasing agitation among veterans and the recent emphasis placed by the American Bar Association on its two to one referendum in favor of repealing the 18th amendment are among other developments indicating that in this time of depression the wets are in a stronger position than they have been before—even though they may not be within range of victory.

Messrs. Frank Harkness, Henry Trimble and Herbert Wilson heard Senator Tillman lecture here Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. James R. Henry and little son, and Miss Lucy Boyd, attended the Fair at Hot Springs last week.

Messrs. Lynn and Dorsey spent Sunday and Monday at Hot Springs.

Mrs. Ed McCorkle is attending the Baptist convention at Lewisville today.

Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Autrey, of Columbus, were in town today.

For a couple of electric company gents, Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope certainly are a couple of live wires.

Gandhi, isn't he stalling at London, probably isn't aware of the tendency to talk in circles at a Round Table Conference.

The Indians, it can be seen, are only talking through their Mahatma.

It was just an irony of circumstance, of course, that England should modify its Gold Standard as Gandhi was preaching the Golden Rule.

Things are so quiet in New York you can almost hear the stocks fall.

It may be tactless for the radio people to tell Gandhi to talk faster, but there's no harm letting him listen in occasionally to Floyd Gibbons.

Town in Texas Suffers $8000 Damage by Fire

MABANK, Texas.—(AP)—Estimated damage of $8000 was done here early Sunday as fire swept the business section. The fire broke out in the Astor building.

Great Smokies 'Paradise' for Nation's Scientists

BRYSAN CITY, N. C.—(AP)—Scientists of the nation are finding their "happy hunting ground" in the Great Smoky mountains, soon to become a national park.

The Great Smokies constitute one of the best laboratories for scientific research in the nation because of their primitive nature, scientists say. Establishment of the national park gives assurance of the preservation of this condition.

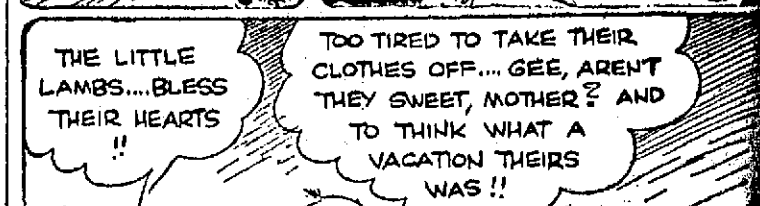

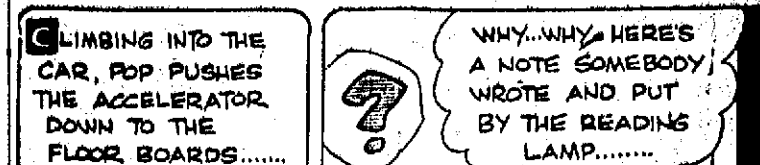

More than 300 small mammals were collected this year by a group of Chicago scientists who have visited the area regularly since 1927. In all 18 species and subspecies were collected.

If we had the time to find a place and sit down full face to face with our better selves that stand no show in our daily lives, that rush so, it might be then we would see our faults. We're stumbling still toward the shining goal. We might be moved by the thought sublime. If we had the time! If we had the time to let our hearts speak out and take nobler parts. To look about and stretch a hand to a comrade quartered on no-luck land. Ah, yes, if we might but just sit still and hear the note of the whip-poor-will. We think that our wishes with Gold would, rhyme. If we had the time—Selected.

Hope Will Meet Camden On Friday

Both Teams Confident of Victory in Annual Pig Skin Clash

The Hope Bobcats started practice this week for their annual game with the Camden Panthers which takes place this year at Camden, October 9. Neither team has lost a game this year and both teams are looking forward to a hard-fought game.

The Panthers this year are practically the same team that defeated the Bobcats here last year by the score of 25-10-0, and the local boys are going down to Camden to avenge that defeat. The Camden team lost several men, among them, Long, all-state backfield ace and McDaniel, another good backfield man who performed against the Cats last year.

The Bobcats started practice behind locked gates at the new field Monday afternoon, and it is rumored that the Cats will exhibit a greater variety of plays than they have shown so far this season. Coaches Wilkin and Jones are working the boys hard and late, getting them in shape for what is probably one of the hardest games of the season.

Many Hope fans are planning to make the trip to Camden for the game, for the Bobcats have an excellent chance of beating the Panthers this year.

Three Hope regulars, "Tiger" Rowe, "Cannonball" Aslin and J. D. Jacks, who did not see action in the Waldo game are back in action and will enter the game Friday.

Loss Exaggerated By Ant Remedies

Federal Bureau Advises That Real Injury Is Generally Small

Home owners should beware of overdrawn and alarming reports of injury to building by termites or white ants, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In particular they should be wary when exaggerated statements of this kind form a part of the "sales talk" for a "termite treatment." Many of these treatments are expensive and are not correspondingly effective. Reports of the Bureau of Entomology indicate that sharpers, overemphasizing the real injury, termites are likely to do, are fleecing from home owners hundreds of thousands of dollars and rendering little or no effective services in return.

State officials and others reporting to the Bureau of Entomology reveal that the termite treatment shapers are particularly active in the South and in some of the Far Western States. In these areas many cities have in recent years amended their building codes as advocated by the Bureau of Entomology and now require adequate safeguards against termites in new construction.

Salesmen, however, have been exaggerating the danger from termites in an effort to sell treatments, many of which have little or no merit, but which they picture as absolutely necessary to prevent the collapse within a short time of buildings invaded or under alleged danger of being invaded by the termites.

The Bureau of Entomology says that there has been no change in the situation in the South and West as to termite damage; that conditions are substantially the same now as they have been for the last 50 or 100 years. The records indicate that the collapse of a building on account of termite damage is so rare as to be for practical purposes a negligible risk. It is true that where termites have been in buildings for many years—as indicated by emerging swarms of the winged forms—the foundation timbers, and even the floors and adjacent woodwork, may have become so weakened as to make necessary some replacement.

The entomologists point out that an experience of 35 years in termite control indicates that radical reconstruction of the foundations is the only permanent and effective remedy for buildings which, because of original faulty construction, have become heavily infested. Such remedial measures as spraying or fumigation, or even removal of the worst infested timbers, without other protection, are at best temporary. Spraying and fumigation are practically useless.

One of the popular remedies being exploited is the spraying of woodwork with poisons. Spraying of construction timbers or other woodwork, even under a forced stream, is of no real value. The poison has little if any penetration unless the timbers are so badly eaten and rotted that they soak up the mixture like a sponge—in which case they are useless and should be replaced.

Arrangements Finished for Arkansas Air Tour

LITTLE ROCK.—(P)—Arrangements for the fourth annual Arkansas air tour have been completed and 12 private pilots, led by a four-ship flight from the 154th observation squadron, probably headed by Major J. Carroll Cone, commanding officer, will leave here Friday for a two-day tour of Eastern and Southern Arkansas and for hops into Memphis and Mississippi. Charles M. Taylor, chairman of the committee on arrangements, announced Saturday.

Phoebe Omie, winner of the 1930 women's air derby from California to the national air races in Cleveland, and a member of the 1928 Arkansas air tour, announced Saturday she would join the tour this year. The only official yet chosen for the tour is Perry G. Smart of Pine Bluff, governor of Arkansas for the National Aeronautic Association, who will serve as tour commander.

Constipation locks up poisons in the body, and allows them to begin dangerous work against your health. Keep the bowels active. If constipated, one of the best things to do is to take Thedford's Black-Draught for prompt relief. Mrs. LeRoy Brack, 2810 Poplar St., Cairo, Ill., writes: "My mother used Thedford's Black-Draught in her home for years. She thought it was so good, she had me use it. I find it is fine for sour stomach and gas. A few doses, taken for several nights, makes me feel like a new person. I have found it very good and dependable."

Cotton Produces
Over Bale An AcreWooten, of Near Nashville Reports
Heavy Yield

Wooten, who lives in the Nashville community, six miles south of Nashville, Saturday reported that he had one small field of cotton which produced extra well this year. The field is only one acre and is situated in the patch and Mr. Wooten has already picked more than two bales from it. He will get at least 400 pounds more of seed cotton from the field, giving him two and three-quarters bales from the patch. Mr. Wooten also stated that he did not use fertilizer on the patch this year, the only fertilizer being that left over from last year.

The soil in the patch is a deep sandy loam and usually produces about a half bale to the acre.

Mr. Wooten's patch is an exceptionally good one, but many in this section are producing more cotton to the acre this year than ever before, and some production is not confined to the patch. For our farmers who have gotten splendid production on all of the varied crops grown here.

Drouth Insurance

For the Corn Crop

Legume and Cover Crops
Should Be Used to Supply This

A good stalk of corn must take a barrel of water out of the soil during its growth. It takes, under ordinary conditions, 250 tons of water to make 30 bushels of corn. Water is the first essential for corn growing. But the corn roots must not stand in water; they must get water from soil that allows excess water to drain off, states D. J. Burleson, Extension agronomist, University of Arkansas College of Agriculture.

This is why humus, or rotting organic matter, is so important in the soil. Commercial fertilizer can supply plant food and if it rains just right, good crops can be made with commercial fertilizer on soil poor in organic matter. But if rain does not come often the crop suffers.

Soil rich in humus will absorb several times as much water as hard clay or sand with no organic matter. A crop of vetch plowed under in the spring not only adds plenty of nitrogen to make a good crop of corn but it also adds organic matter to the soil and thus increases the water holding power.

"After all, it is not so much the amount of rainfall that determines the crop's water supply as it is the amount of water the soil can hold for gradual delivery to the crop. Stable manure or any kind of green manure crop is, therefore, valuable as drouth insurance," points out Mr. Burleson.

Vetch is the best crop to plant, is the fall for adding nitrogen to the soil as well as organic matter as a partial insurance against drouth. To get the full soil improvement value of vetch it should be plowed under at least two weeks before planting corn.

Blevins Personal

Many Blevins residents are attending court, now in session at Washington this week.

M. L. Nelson of Blevins, was cohen foreman of the grand jury at Washington when court convened Monday morning.

Rev. J. W. Whiteside, pastor of the Blevins Methodist church was a visitor in Hope Monday morning.

Miss Ruthal Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brown has gone to Tucson, Ariz., where she will make her home this winter with her aunt Mrs. Robert Beene, and attend school at that place.

Miss Brown will be greatly missed in Blevins. She has been a steady worker for some time at the H. M. Stephens & Company store and was pianist at the Methodist church.

Next week Blevins meets the strong Locksburg team on the local field and a large crowd is expected to attend.

Both were in France and have had some real experiences together. The visit was greatly enjoyed by both of them.

Both are very popular in the community and are great workers in church activities.

The entire community joins in wishing them every happiness and a great success.
